M'CUNE COLLEGE,

LOUISIANA, MO.

THIS Institution having been recently organized [illegible] tion filed for a charter, will open in the old Bapti[illegible] building with nearly the same Board of Directo[illegible] President as Louisiana College. There will be [illegible] the Faculty. It is named in honor of one of the l[illegible] our county and city, and a man noted for his liberal [illegible] christian character.

Under the direction of President Alfred Slaughter, t[illegible] of Louisiana College was far beyond the expectations [illegible] ardent friends; having matriculated one hundred a[illegible] (114) students, representing four (4) States and nine (9) [illegible] of Missouri.

No efforts will be spared to make "McCune College" [illegible] nent and successful institution. It has already a [illegible] chemical, philosophical and astronomical apparatus; a [illegible] cient number of new and elegant musical instruments; [illegible] fitted with new furniture from top to bottom—[illegible] and large airy rooms.

LOCATION.

Located at Louisiana, Mo., one of the prettiest and most picturesque cities in the Union; possesses unrivaled [illegible] connected with all the leading railroads and counties of the West and East, by the C. & A. railroad, and in easy [illegible] to the North and South by means of the St. Louis, [illegible] Northwestern Railroad, to say nothing of the delightful [illegible] reaching the city by means of the grand Mississippi River [illegible] elegant steamers.

BUILDING.

The building, already large and commodious, is well [illegible] and centrally located on the corner of South Carolina [illegible] streets. It is tastefully and conveniently arranged. The [illegible] rooms and bedrooms are all that could be desired by [illegible] fastidious. A thorough overhauling of all the rooms will take place during vacation, so that, at the opening, everything will be in perfect order. An addition to the building, in the shape of a mansard roof, is in contemplation, and the grounds will also be enlarged. When these additions shall have been completed the building can accommodate 125 boarders. The Faculty will do all in their power to merit patronage, both local and otherwise, and trust to be rewarded by a full school.

MATRICULATED 1880 AND 1881.

The College has been reorganized under a new charter, and will hereafter be known as "McCune College." The following are the names of pupils attending Louisiana College during the years 1880 and '81 :
